SUMMARY OF ASSESSMENT

Component 1: Studies in Depth

Written examinations: 2 hours (split into two papers of 1 hour duration each)
50% of qualification

This component is in two parts and offers a choice of eight Studies in Depth - four British and four non-British. Centres choose one British Study in Depth from the following:

- 1A. Conflict and Upheaval: England, 1337-1381
- 1B. The Elizabethan Age, 1558-1603
- 1C. Empire, Reform and War: Britain, 1890-1918
- 1D. Austerity, Affluence and Discontent: Britain, 1951-1979

Centres choose one non-British Study in Depth from the following:

- 1E. The Crusades, c.1095-1149
- 1F. The Voyages of Discovery and Conquest of the Americas, 1492-1522
- 1G. Germany in Transition, 1919-1939
- 1H. The USA: A Nation of Contrasts, 1910-1929

The British and non-British Studies in Depth must be from different historical eras.

Each study will be assessed by compulsory questions focusing extensively on the analysis and evaluation of historical sources and interpretations. There will also be questions testing second order historical concepts.

Component 2: Studies in Breadth

Written examinations: 2 hours (split into two papers of 45 minutes for the Period Study and 1 hour 15 minutes for the Thematic Study)
50% of qualification

This component is in two parts and offers a choice of four Period Studies and four Thematic Studies. Centres choose one Period Study from the following:

- 2A. The Development of the USA, 1929-2000
- 2B. The Development of Germany, 1919-1991
- 2C. The Development of the USSR, 1924-1991
- 2D. The Development of the UK, 1919-1990

Centres choose one Thematic Study from the following:

- 2E. Changes in Crime and Punishment in Britain, c.500 to the present day
- 2F. Changes in Health and Medicine in Britain, c.500 to the present day
- 2G. The Development of Warfare in Britain, c.500 to the present day
- 2H. Changes in Entertainment and Leisure in Britain, c.500 to the present day

The requirement to study an historic site is part of the Thematic Study.

Each study will be assessed by compulsory questions focusing extensively on second order historical concepts including continuity, change, cause, consequence, significance, similarity and difference.

This linear qualification will be available in May/June each year. All assessments will be by examination. The qualification will be awarded for the first time in summer 2018.

GCSE HISTORY

1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Aims and objectives

The WJEC Eduqas GCSE in History encourages learners to:

develop their interest in and enthusiasm for history and an understanding of its intrinsic value and significance develop and extend their knowledge and understanding of specific historical events, periods and societies acquire an understanding of different identities, including their own, within a society and an appreciation of social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity build on their understanding of the past and the diversity of human experience through experiencing a broad and balanced course of study improve as effective, independent and resilient learners and as critical and reflective thinkers through a process of historical enquiry develop the ability to ask relevant and considered questions about the past and to investigate historical issues critically acquire an understanding of the nature of historical study, for example, that history is concerned with judgements based on available evidence and that some historical judgements may be more valid than others develop their use and understanding of historical terms, concepts and skills develop the ability to construct valid and realistic historical claims by using a range of sources in context develop a critical appreciation of the concept of historical significance and why some people, events and developments are seen as historically significant develop a critical appreciation of how and why different interpretations have been constructed about historically significant people, events and developments make links and draw comparisons within and/or across different periods and aspects of the past organise and communicate their historical knowledge and understanding in different ways, arguing a case and reaching substantiated judgements create their own structured accounts, selecting organising and communicating their knowledge and understanding in written narratives create their own balanced, reasoned and well substantiated extended responses.

The WJEC Eduqas GCSE in History is attractive, giving learners the opportunity to study:

history from three eras: Medieval (500-1500), Early Modern (1450-1750) and Modern (1700-present day)

specific aspects of the past in depth (short term), and breadth (medium and long term)

history in three geographical contexts: local, British and European and/or Wider World settings continuity, change, cause, consequence, significance and similarity and difference over different periods of time both short term, medium term and long term the nature and purpose of history as a discipline.

The structure of the specification is distinctive, giving learners the opportunity to study history in depth and in breadth. The structure of the specification allows learners to make a clear distinction between the study of history in the short term and the medium and long term. It provides, therefore, a substantial programme of study. At the same time it actively encourages connections between different periods and eras in history, and as such represents a coherent programme of study.

1.2 Prior learning and progression

There are no previous learning requirements for this specification. Any requirements set for entry to a course based on this specification are at the school/college's discretion.

This specification builds on subject content which is typically taught at key stage 3 and provides a suitable foundation for the study of history at either AS or A level. In addition, the specification provides a coherent, satisfying and worthwhile course of study for learners who do not progress to further study in this subject.

1.3 Equality and fair access

This specification may be followed by any learner, irrespective of gender, ethnic, religious or cultural background. It has been designed to avoid, where possible, features that could, without justification, make it more difficult for a learner to achieve because they have a particular protected characteristic.

The protected characteristics under the Equality Act 2010 are age, disability, gender reassignment, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex and sexual orientation.

The specification has been discussed with groups who represent the interests of a diverse range of learners, and the specification will be kept under review.

Reasonable adjustments are made for certain learners in order to enable them to access the assessments (e.g. candidates are allowed access to a Sign Language Interpreter, using British Sign Language). Information on reasonable adjustments is found in the following document from the Joint Council for Qualifications (JCQ): Access Arrangements and Reasonable Adjustments: General and Vocational Qualifications.

This document is available on the JCQ website (www.jcq.org.uk). As a consequence of provision for reasonable adjustments, very few learners will have a complete barrier to any part of the assessment.

2 SUBJECT CONTENT

This specification provides a broad and coherent course of study. The specification ensures the study of:

- history on three different timescales; short, medium and long-term
- history in three geographical contexts; local, British and European/ World
- history across three historical eras.

The breadth of the specification is, therefore, ensured by the features above.

This specification also provides a coherent and integrated study of history by fulfilling the agreed subject content. This specification offers an opportunity for teachers of history to approach the subject through a variety of options which will lead to a broad, balanced and coherent course. All permitted combinations of study provided by this specification allow centres to construct a course which is broad and coherent for learners. Each component offers a different perspective to the study of history and ensures breadth and coherence.

This specification will develop in learners the ability to construct balanced, reasoned and well substantiated extended responses to historical questions. This specification and its assessment provides opportunities for extended responses which allow learners to demonstrate the ability to construct and develop a sustained line of reasoning which is coherent, relevant, substantiated and logically structured.

This specification will also develop in learners the ability to create written narratives in which they demonstrate chronological grasp, the ability to organise their historical knowledge and understanding, order points, make connections and explain consequences.

Component 1: Studies in Depth

Written examinations: 2 hours (comprising two papers of 1 hour duration each)

50% of qualification

100 marks (plus 6 marks for spelling, punctuation and grammar and use of specialist terms)

Learners study two Studies in Depth, one British and one non-British, from eight options in total. This component focuses study on substantial and coherent short time scales. Studies in Depth will provide learners with the opportunity to study history in greater depth and consequently understand the complexity of a society or historical situation more effectively. Studies in Depth will focus study on different historical eras and different geographical contexts. This component encourages learners to use a wide range of historical sources. Learners should also study different historical interpretations of specific events and issues.

Component 2: Studies in Breadth

Written examinations: 2 hours (comprising two papers of 45 minutes for the Period Study and one hour fifteen minutes for the Thematic Study)

50% of qualification

100 marks (plus 4 marks for spelling, punctuation and grammar and use of specialist terms)

Learners study one Period Study and one Thematic Study, from eight options in total. This component focuses study on substantial and coherent medium and long timescales. Studies in Breadth will provide learners with the opportunity to study history over longer timescales and consequently understand the changing nature of developments and issues associated with particular periods and geographical contexts. Studies in Breadth will also allow learners to understand change and continuity and similarity and difference across long sweeps of history, as well as the most significant characteristics of different ages. Studies in Breadth will focus study on different historical eras and different geographical contexts. This component encourages learners to develop an understanding of second order historical concepts in particular, including continuity, change, cause, consequence, significance and similarity and difference.

Study of the historic environment

The requirement to study the historic environment should focus on one particular site in its historical context. Learners should examine the relationship between a place and historical events and developments. In this specification the study of the historic environment is an integrated part of the required content for each of the Thematic Studies. The following provides guidance on how centres should approach the study of an historic site.

The investigation of an historic site offers learners the opportunity to actively engage in the past. In doing so they will:

- develop their knowledge and understanding of an historic site
- ask relevant questions about an historic site and investigate them critically
- organise and communicate their knowledge and understanding of an historic site in order to reach substantiated judgements.

In studying an historic site, learners should consider the following:

- the key historic features of the historic site
- the significance of the historic site on a local, regional or national level
- the relevance of the historic site to the development of the chosen Thematic Study
- how the historic site contributes to a broader understanding of changes in the history of the chosen Thematic Study.

For each Thematic Study an historic site will be nominated which will emerge naturally from the required content. The nominated historic site for each Thematic Study will change every two years (see table below). The study of the historic environment is worth 10% of the overall specification. There is no requirement that learners visit the site.

Examination Dates	Thematic Study	Nominated historic site
2022 and 2023	Changes in Crime and Punishment in Britain, c.500 to the present day	Pentonville Prison, 1842 to the present day.
2024 and 2025	Changes in Crime and Punishment in Britain, c.500 to the present day	Lincoln Castle gaol and prison, 1787-1878.
2022 and 2023	Changes in Health and Medicine in Britain, c.500 to the present day	Scutari Hospital and the treatment and care of the wounded during the Crimean War, 1853-1856
2024 and 2025	Changes in Health and Medicine in Britain, c.500 to the present day	Living conditions in the Ancoats district of Manchester c.1790 to the present day.
2022 and 2023	The Development of Warfare in Britain, c.500 to the present day	The development of Dover Castle, 1066-1945
2024 and 2025	The Development of Warfare in Britain, c.500 to the present day	RAF Biggin Hill, 1916-1959.
2022 and 2023	Changes in Entertainment and Leisure in Britain, c.500 to the present day	The development of Butlins holiday camp, Skegness, 1936 to the present day.
2024 and 2025	Changes in Entertainment and Leisure in Britain, c.500 to the present day	Alexandra Palace, 1859 to the present day.

Please note that new historic sites will be nominated for each Thematic Study after 2025.

SUMMARY OF OPTIONS

Component 1: Studies in Depth

Learners are required to study one option from 1A-D and one option from 1E-H. The two options studied must be from different historical eras (Medieval, 500-1500; Early Modern, 1450-1750; and Modern, 1700-present).

2H. Changes in Entertainment and Leisure in Britain, c.500 to the present day

British history must form a minimum of 40% of the assessed content over the full course. This specification covers this requirement by including a British Study in Depth in Component 1 and a British-based Thematic Study in Component 2.

PERMITTED COMBINATIONS OF OPTIONS

A list of all permitted combinations of options can be found in Appendix A of the specification.

Through the study of permitted combinations of options learners will develop and demonstrate the full range of historical knowledge, understanding and method required at GCSE as noted below:

- knowledge and understanding of the key features and characteristics of the periods studied: the chronology, individuals, events, developments and issues in the specified content
- understanding and appropriate use in context of historical terms including first order historical concepts such as 'constitution', 'nation', 'revolution', 'society'
- the ability to create their own structured accounts, selecting organising and communicating their knowledge and understanding in written narratives, descriptions and analyses, reaching substantiated conclusions when appropriate
- understanding of the key features and characteristics of the periods studied in relation to second order historical concepts of continuity, change, cause, consequence, significance and similarity and difference within situations
- understanding of the relationships between different aspects within the periods studied, making connections, drawing contrasts and analysing trends. Examples of the related aspects include all or some of the following examples: between local, regional, national and international history; between cultural, economic, social, political, religious and military history; and between short and long term timescales
- the ability to understand and use critically and constructively a range of contemporary source material appropriate to the period (including written historical sources whose precise provenance is given) to frame their own valid historical questions and make their own valid historical claims
- understanding of how evidence is used rigorously to make historical claims, discerning how and why different interpretations of the past have been constructed.
